DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shibasaki in view of Eldridge et al. Shibasaki teaches the claimed invention by effecting feeding wires into a heated atmosphere after cutting the wires to the required range of .1-.3 ratio. Note that Shibasaki teaches a diameter of .4-.6 mm and a length of from .24 - .53 mm. This teaches the claimed ratio. Shibasaki does not teach use of plasma to heat the cut wires. However, as set forth in Eldridge et al it is conventional to use heat of plasma to melt wires and doing so leads to highly accurate results. In view of this teaching it would have been obvious to modify the Shibasaki system to use plasma as the heat source, with the benefit of a more controlled heating and more accurate spheres produced. Note that the claimed volumes of claims 2 and 3 is set forth in Shibasaki as modified. As per claim 3 the tolerances claimed are considered routine and obvious choices for the artisan, such choices dependent on the materials used and the gases and parameters chosen. As per claim 4 note the applied patents teach the materials chosen. Also choice of any metal as the source is an obvious one since the heat of plasma is far greater than the melting point of all metals. Use of 1-20% H₂ as per claim 7 is an obvious choice dependent on the materials processed, which are not set forth in the claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Tsant4izos and Maruyama et al are cited for disclosing similar sphere producing systems to that disclosed instantly.
